Are answers to questions sending notification emails correctly?

After the March 15th DC update I posted one Question (as opposed to Article). I've been used to getting notified by email no more than an hour after someone responds to a post of mine. In the case of my question, I think I only got that email when someone posted a Comment on the question. When I went to read that comment I saw that there were several Answers that had been posted many hours earlier.

It's possible I overlooked earlier notification emails, so part of the purpose of this question is to act as a test. Please don't add a comment to the question. Instead, add an Answer. If I get notified, great! If not, perhaps there's a bug here.

Thanks,

John
