Question
Alexey Maslov · Aug 7, 2019

What is the simplest/quickest way to detect that Journaling was switched to a new file?

My fantasy didn't go beyond periodically running %SYS.Journal.System:Progress() class query, while I'd prefer to use an event handler of some kind. Any ideas?

#Journaling #Caché #InterSystems IRIS

Source
URL:https://community.intersystems.com/post/what-simplestquickest-way-detect-journaling-was-switched-new-file